Canadian Paramedic Profile

Standards of Practice

Board of Directors' approval for consultation
2016 September 24

Overview

Paramedics are bound to act and perform in a specific manner. The Standards of Practice relate to the six roles (plus the integrative paramedic role) in the Canadian Paramedic Profile: clinician, professional, educator, advocate, team member, and reflective practitioner.

Clinician

1. Apply foundational knowledge to evidence-informed practice, including paramedicine, clinical sciences, social sciences, leadership, management, health and social services, and public safety systems.
2. Acquire informed consent and assess the patient's medical, mental health, and social needs.
3. Remain accountable for ongoing advice, assessment, treatment, diagnosis, administering or dispensing of medication, and referral.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in psychomotor skills required to provide health services.
5. Apply critical thinking and clinical judgment in practice.
6. Apply quality assurance and quality improvement processes.
7. Demonstrate an informed approach to patient access, assessment, treatment, treatment in place, referral, extrication, transfer and continuity of care, immobilization, and transport.
8. Ensure mental and physical fitness to practice, and seek advice and intervention when reasonable and prudent.

Professional

1. Apply clinical and professional judgment to ensure informed consent, informed refusal of care, and informed referral of care.
2. Practice in a manner consistent with applicable policy and procedure.
3. Report unsafe practice, alleged unprofessional conduct, and/or potential criminal activity to the appropriate authority, and cooperate with investigation.
4. Comply with applicable regulation and legislation.
5. Ensure timely, accurate, legible, and complete documentation.

Educator

1. Seek opportunities to translate knowledge: teach and be taught.
2. Provide coaching, preceptorship, mentorship, leadership, and direct and indirect supervision to students and colleagues.
3. Remain accountable for the provision of care.
4. Ensure patient safety when considering the knowledge and ability of students and colleagues while overseeing provision of care.
5. Remain accountable for documentation and communication to ensure accuracy, clarity, and timeliness.
6. Share knowledge and expertise with others.
7. Maintain professional relationships and contribute to collaborative learning.
8. Provide and promote health teaching to the patient.

Advocate

1. Participate in regular review of clinical, administrative, and operational policy and procedure.
2. Question policies and procedures that may be inconsistent with patient needs and safe health care practice, and suggest and implement improvement.
3. Apply risk mitigation strategies to prevent or minimize adverse events through identification, reporting, monitoring, and follow-up.
4. Participate in maintaining competence and professional development opportunities.
5. Seek assistance, consultation, referral, or other actions when in the patient's best interest.
6. Promote quality and safety in medication dispensing, administration, inventory management, and system oversight.
7. Engage in research to identify and disseminate best practice.
